THE GREATEST care should be taken in what we eat and drink, yet we are too often indifferent and careless, notwithstanding health depends on what we eat and drink.

In regard to drink nothing but the best should be taken. It costs no more than the inferior quality, if people would only ask for what they know is the best. Old Scotch Whisky is the most wholesome beverage yet known. Macle's Scotch Whisky gives an undoubted guarantee to those who are not judges of quality.

CITY ANALYST'S LABORATORY,
133 BATH STREET,
GLASGOW, 8th October, 1906.

I hereby certify that I have taken samples of every variety of Macle's White Horse Cellar Blend of Scotch Whisky used in bottling during the month of September, and the results of my analyses indicate that it conforms to the standard for Pot Still Scotch Whisky set up in the London case. I am also of opinion that it is an old Whisky of excellent quality and flavour, which has been well matured in wood.

ISRAEL IN EUROPE.

"The appearance of 'Israel in Europe,' by G. F. Abbott (Macmillan and Co.) is" says the "Athenaeum" well-timed. Although political Zionism, which a few years ago stirred the imagination of many, is once more under an eclipse, the Jewish question in Russia, Roumania, and elsewhere continues to command its full degree of interest in economic and other circles; and as one of the great functions of history is to throw light on present day problems, a work like the one now before us ought to prove useful to many readers. The collection of the large and varied mass of materials which go to make up this long story of suffering, partial degradation, and pretty general victory of the better elements of humanity, must have entailed an enormous amount of labour, and the arrangement of the details thus obtained could have been no easy task; and it is therefore the more to the credit of our author that the result is an easy and pleasant narrative, engaging the reader's attention without at any time producing the sense of weariness which sometimes accompanies the perusal of more elaborate and ambitious historical essays.

The reflective portions of the work, though also well and fluently written, are, it must be owned, not always fully convincing. The contrast between Hebraism and Hellenism (halt with at the beginning of the book, for instance, resolves itself, in the author's mind, chiefly into the well-known opposition between Oriental and Occidental habits of thought. But if this were so, why should Hellenism have had to wage a much fiercer war against the Hebrew portion of the East than against the Syrian element of the same neighbourhood. The fact is that it was not so much the Orientalism of the Hebrew which refused to coalesce with Greek ideals as his strict monotheism, and it is on this that the weight of the argument ought to have rested. It also seems to us that the resemblance, "to the minutest details," between the Puritans and the Jews, so strongly insisted on in chap. xviii., has been much exaggerated by the writer's facile pen, and that more stress ought to have been laid on the religious hopes and aspirations of the time, which were undoubtedly one of the chief motive powers in bringing about the resettlement of the Jews in this country. As, however, the reader will be mainly interested in the narrative portions which are the sum and substance of the book, he will not be much disturbed by these incidental defects; but will continue to peruse the volume with interest until he reaches its final page.

The scope of the work is so wide that it would be impossible to include even a fair selection of its details within the limits of this notice. It is also, no doubt, on account of the vastness of the subject that the author has been obliged to exclude a number of incidents which would have found a place in a more elaborate publication on the history of the Jews in Europe. A writer who undertakes to set forth in not too bulky a volume the adventures of a most versatile people among many races and climes during full two thousand years, and who has to treat on such topics as 'Christianity and the Jews,' 'The Jews in Spain,' 'The Jews in England,' 'The Renaissance,' 'Zionism,' and about a score of others, is bound to leave out many things which the specialist is apt to seek in his pages. We think however, that Cumberland's play, 'The Jew' and George Eliot's, 'Daniel Deronda' should not have been omitted from the treatment of Jewish character in literature, to which Mr. Abbott is otherwise disposed to pay a full share of attention.

Defects of this kind and the slight inaccuracies which are to be met with here and there do not detract much from the value of the work as a whole. The author's standpoint is that of sympathetic interest in the fortunes of the people with whose history he deals, but his sympathy never betrays him into a want of historical candour. We have, in fact, often both sides of the question presented to us, and the narrative thus never fails to inspire the reader with a full degree of confidence.

Carriage Collision.

A collision occurred yesterday morning between two carriages in Sharia Abdin, Cairo. A shaft entered the body of one of the horses of the other carriage which was driving on the wrong side of the road. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals advised that the wounded horse should be killed, and sent one of its ambulance carts for the conveyance of the animal to the depot.

Sudan Rains.

The Sudan Government Agency in Cairo has received a telegram from Khartoum announcing that the railway was again damaged between Khartoum and Wadi Halfa by fresh torrents of rain. Jackson Pasha, moudir of Dongola, and other officials were not able to leave Khartoum on Sunday evening, and were compelled to wait for the re-establishment of communication in order to return to Cairo.

A Woman's Anger.

A Cairo contemporary reports that about 4.15 p.m. yesterday a tram going at full speed in the rue Clot Bey, Cairo, buffeted a woman which is seriously damaged. The driver, apparently confused by the collision, jumped to the ground in a furious rage, armed with the driving key, and inflicted a terrible wound on the face of the carter. A large crowd collected, obstructing the road for some distance. Every care was given to the wounded man, and this model driver, seizing an opportunity, remounted his tram and departed.

Cum Arabic.

Gum arabic, which forms one of the more important minor exports of Egypt, is really the sap from a special kind of tree which grows from three to five yards in height, whose forests of which are found in the Kordofan, provinces, and also near Gedid, in the White Nile province. The natives are free to collect the gum. The season during which the trees yield their sap runs from December to May. Prior to gathering the crop the natives prepare the trees by slightly cutting the bark in numerous places. The sap then exudes, solidifies in the shape of large and small lumps and is afterwards gathered by hand, such gathering being done before the rainy season commences.

THE RENT CRISIS.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

One of the most important, and at the same time remarkable, and even paradoxical, features of the existing financial crisis is the continued increase in the price of rents, especially as regards the smaller houses, and the consequent fight between landlord and tenant.

This morning more than eighty cases concerning rent disputes were presented at the Mixed Tribunals of Alexandria. In the majority of these cases the eviction of the tenant, on the grounds of the latter having refused to pay the increased rent was demanded.

We cannot but regret this effort of the landlords at the present moment of stress to make so serious an effort to raise the rental value of their houses to such a price as to force the settlement of the question by law. The natural consequence of general poverty, such as is now apparent among all classes in Egypt, is a tendency towards the lowering of all prices, and especially so in the case of rents, when the prices are already elevated to such a degree as to make existence in comfort almost impossible to those of ordinary income.

In the town of Alexandria, the increase in rents during recent years has caused what might be described, almost without exaggeration, as a social crisis, and many families now-a-days find it most difficult to make both ends meet.

Moreover, for such a situation as the population of Alexandria is now suffering from, for the difficulty with which the man of moderate means can now live in comparative comfort, the Municipality of this town is in no small degree responsible. For more than five years the question of economical houses, to which we have given constant attention, has been practically disregarded, for they have up to the present failed to come to any decision. It has been suggested to us that the reason for this neglect of a most excellent project is that the members of the Municipality are in most cases landlords and fear that it would be against their personal interests to give a final solution to this question. Such an opinion we hardly care to entertain, but we put it before the public as being offered by many of our readers, and at the same time urge the Municipality to refuse such an imputation. Should such be the case, as should most certainly be proved or disproved, it would be the duty of the Government to intervene and safeguard the interests of the Alexandrian public.

WOMEN THROWN TO SHARKS

EXCESSES BY TURKISH TROOPS.

The "Daily Telegraph" special correspondent at Milan has telegraphed the contents of a letter received by the Carriere della Sera from Hodeidah, which states that serious excesses, as reported by our Aden correspondent, have been committed by discharged Turkish soldiers who arrived there from the inland part of Yemen, but were prevented from going home immediately by the lack of steamers. When one steamer arrived 2,000 soldiers embarked thereon, several with their sweethearts, and terrible quarrels broke out on board. There were 110 people killed or wounded. Two women were thrown overboard alive to the sharks surrounding the steamer.

Then came 1,800 more discharged men, who, not finding any transports, cut the waterpipes, attacked the shops, and destroyed everything within reach. They also seized the general in command of the troops and dragged him about amidst coarse insults. Some of the officers' wives were captured and carried into the mosques, where they were outraged. For this offence to religion the Arabs armed themselves and attacked the soldiers, killing eight and wounding fourteen. Three Arabs died.

More discharged soldiers are expected, and therefore the town is greatly excited. Hitherto Europeans have been respected, but the Italians have asked the governor of the colony of Erythraea to send a ship for their protection. English subjects have also asked for protection; indeed, a British vessel is expected at Hodeidah.

OUR MOSLEM SISTERS.

"The Renaissance of Islam means the renaissance of humanity," said a champion of the faith whose sincerity we have no desire to question. That incalculable good would be done if Islam could be raised to its best ideals says the "Spectator" no one would deny. Meanwhile there are obstacles of the most serious kind to be overcome, and the chief of these is the condition of woman under Islam. There is divorce, for instance. Christian countries are not without the scandal. But what is to be said of a country where the lowest estimate of the marriages that end in this way is fifty per cent., and the highest ninety-five? This is affirmed of Egypt. Even the highest estimate seems to be below the mark if we are to believe the statement of a native Bible woman who had worked among Mohammedans for fourteen years. "How many men or women of twenty-five are living with their original partners?" "If you mean," she replied, "that neither has been divorced or married any one else, perhaps one in two thousand." The observations and experience of men and women who have worked in Morocco, Tunis, the Central Sudan, Arabia, Turkey, and Persia are given. It is to be noted that the more a country is touched by European influence, the more the lot of the women is improved.

"Our Moslem Sisters." Edited by Annie Van Sommer and Samuel M. Zwemer. (Fleming H. Revell Company. 36 3d set.

EGYPTIAN EDUCATION.

STATISTICAL RETURNS.

"The want of complete and trustworthy statistical data as to the number and educational importance of schools in Egypt," says Mr. Randone, director of the Statistical Department of the Ministry of Finance, "was never before felt to such a degree as at the present time; the question of improving educational methods and extending public instruction occupying as it does, the attention of both Government and public opinion all over the civilized world. Therefore, this department felt it its duty to try and facilitate the study of this problem by collecting the necessary information about both governmental and private, Egyptian and foreign schools. Before all, I think it necessary to make those who may examine the returns, acquainted with the method adopted by this department for the collection of the necessary information. In so doing, I intend to show them that the deficiencies are not derived from the way in which the work has been organized and carried on, but merely from a very singular state of local conditions. At the request of this department the local authorities, consular representatives and religious communities kindly furnished a list of schools placed under their respective jurisdictions. According to the data contained in these lists and the information directly collected by this department, a first provisional list of educational establishments existing in the country was drawn up. A copy of this list and a blank form for the collection of general data was supplied to the directors of schools whose names were entered in the above list. By a circular addressed to them at the same time, they were requested to fill in and return the form, and also to point out to this Department any mistakes or omissions they might have noted in the list. The same documents, accompanied by a similar request, were also addressed to the diplomatic representatives and religious communities.

"Further, a second provisional list was published, which contained the information collected in the first form, and in which this department had introduced the modifications suggested. With this second list, this department sent to the directors of schools the necessary blank forms to be filled in with detailed data as to the number of both teachers, and pupils, their nationality, age, religion, etc. In order to avoid any omission or mistake in the distribution of forms a post-card was also supplied on which the directors of schools might acknowledge the receipt of the documents mentioned above and ask at the same time for whatever else they might need; viz, a supplementary provision of blanks or any explanations as to how they should be filled in. As a result of these precautions, among 520 schools to which the demand for information was sent, only 15 (mostly provincial establishments) did not supply us with the required information, or if sent they did not reach us.

"I will now explain and point out the cause of the deficiencies which occur in these returns. In the first place, the principal omission is that no information is given as to the examinations, the teaching, and the passing of pupils to higher schools. On this subject it should be said that the present publication is a statistical return of pupils at schools in Egypt and not a complete presentation of the educational statistics of the country. This department has been compelled to circumscribe greatly the field of the inquiry in order to avoid compromising the result of the first attempt at such a research by asking for too many details. It intended mainly to lay down a basis for a further elaboration of complete statistics on schools, which I hope may shortly be undertaken.

"In the second place, this work may be considered to present too detailed a classification of schools and pupils by nationality, religion, age, etc. But those who know the country and the importance of the part which foreign colonies and religious communities play here, will certainly agree that this department must always have present in its mind, in elaborating such kind of work, the interests of these bodies, and should make it possible for them to find in it the information spontaneously furnished by each one separately.

"In the third place, the terminology adopted for the various educational degrees of schools may also be somewhat criticised. But this Department has been compelled to adopt a classification which could be applied to the greatest number of schools. In any case, it should be said that the several groups of schools, being subject to different regulations and programmes, the significance of each degree must be determined according to the educational laws of the country to which each group belongs.

"Finally, I must confess that I do not absolutely exclude the possibility that some schools may have been omitted in this volume. But I am quite sure that these omissions, if there are any, are so trivial in quantity and so insignificant, compared to the total result, that they cannot sensibly alter the meaning and importance of the figures published in this work; all the possible precautions were taken in order to avoid such omissions. In any case, it is the first time that such a work has been published in Egypt; and it is much to be hoped that time will contribute to its further development on wider lines.

To the total number of pupils in the primary and elementary schools comprised in the present enquiry should be added that of Kuttab. The total number of pupils receiving elementary education in Egypt then would be raised from 68,427 to 234,014.

In our issue of Monday we shall summarise the most interesting details given by these statistical tables.

Runciman informed Mr. Briggs in the House of Commons this week that the directors of the Suez Canal Company met, as a rule, at the offices of the company in Paris on the first Monday of every month, but meetings could at any time be summoned by the President, should the business of the company require it. In accordance with the agreement come to in 1883, seven of the directors were chosen from among British shipowners and merchants, and formed a committee, who had an office in London, and selected a new member as a vacancy occurred, whose appointment was submitted to the Council and ratified, as in the case of all other directors, by the general body of shareholders. The directors were appointed for eight years, but might be re-elected at the expiration of that period.

SPORT AND PLAY.

CRICKET.

ALEXANDRIA v. CAIRO.

Yesterday afternoon a match was played on the ground of the Alexandria Cricket Club between teams representing the two capitals of Egypt, in which Alexandria proved the winner by 84 runs.

Cairo winning the toss took first innings. Boys and Hoskins going to the wickets. With two on the board Boys was stumped, and at 12 Hoskins fell a victim to Prosser. A good catch in the long field by McLean, off Marsden disposed of Burnham, three wickets now being down for 14, and the fourth and fifth fell at the same total. The sixth wicket fell with the score at 21. Wright having amassed twelve which proved the highest score of the innings. Only six was added to the score before the seventh man fell, being run out by a very smart piece of fielding by Mainprize. Wyatt contributed twelve runs and the innings terminated for the insignificant total of 49. The wickets were divided between Marsden and Prosser, each of whom took four wickets.

The Alexandria innings opened with H. B. Carver and Hay. At seven Carver was bowled by a short pitcher from Burnham, and with the addition of two runs, Hay's wicket was dislodged by a yorker from Wright. Marsden and Mainprize then came together and made the only stand of the match, the former compiling 45 by good all-round play, and Mainprize, with a total of 35, drove the ball to the boundary eight times. Play then was very slow and uninteresting, the players, instead of forcing the game, being content to stonewall. Muir took the best part of an hour to compile 13, in which he showed far too much caution, and McLean contributed 10, hitting at everything which came his way. The tail followed his lead and took every risk, with the result that the team was dismissed for a total of 133. Appended are the scores:—

Etaient présents MM. Barbas, Ehrlich, Mansour Bey Youssef, Tambaopoulo et Zervoudaki, membres, I. Sidky Bey, Secrétaire Général.

La Délégation décide d'accepter la cession de deux rues offertes par la Société des Entreprises Urbaines et Rurales près de la rue Ras-saf, sans condition aucune.

Elle demande à la Commission Municipale l'ouverture d'un crédit supplémentaire de L.E. 200 pour la construction de la galerie Friedheim, à prélever sur le budget extraordinaire.

Il est donné communication d'une lettre de l'inspecteur du Suez Cercle d'Irrigation d'après laquelle le niveau des Eaux du Canal Mahmoudieh ne serait pas inférieur cette année-ci à celui de la période correspondante de l'année passée et que l'état des basses eaux est dû aux rotations et à l'irrigation du Charaki, mais qu'à partir de la fin de ce mois cette situation s'améliorera.

La Délégation prend connaissance d'un projet élaboré par la Police tendant à modifier les Kiams de la Ville d'Alexandrie, par suite du développement des quartiers suburbains.

A ce sujet il est donné communication d'une note de l'Inspecteur Sanitaire, qui tendrait à voir maintenir dans l'intérêt de la statistique municipale et des nécessités du Service les circonscriptions actuelles pour ce qui concerne la Municipalité.

La Délégation, après un échange d'idées, charge l'Inspecteur Sanitaire de se mettre, à ce sujet, d'accord avec la police, en exprimant le vœu que les choses soient établies de telle façon que les bases sur lesquelles se font les statistiques restent inchangées et qu'il y ait le moins de modifications possible dans l'intérieur de la ville.

La Délégation, saisie d'une proposition de l'Inspecteur Sanitaire tendant à comprendre les hôtels, pensions et restaurants publics parmi les établissements régis par le décret du 24 août 1904, décide, après un échange d'idées, d'ajourner l'examen de cette proposition à une date ultérieure.

Elle proposera à la Commission Municipale l'ouverture d'un crédit de L.E. 75 pour l'achat de 1200 mètres de tuyaux pour le Service des pompiers, en remplacement des tuyaux qui servent actuellement à l'arrosage des quais par l'eau de mer.

La Délégation adjuge à M. Chaaban Ramadan, au prix de L.E. 80 qu'il offre de payer à la Municipalité les travaux de démolition de sept maisons expropriées pour l'ouverture des rues dans les quartiers Abousir, Balakstanis et El-Gudawi.

Communication est donnée d'une lettre du Ministère des travaux publics informant, en réponse à la demande de la Municipalité, que ce Ministère est disposé de porter de L.E. 1000 à L.E. 1600 sa contribution dans les travaux de construction d'une route et d'une canalisation des quais d'Anfouche jusqu'au Palais de Ras-el-Tin à la condition que ces travaux soient entrepris immédiatement.

La Délégation décide, en conséquence, l'exécution d'urgence de ces travaux dont la dépense s'élève à L.E. 7250.

Sur la demande des propriétaires riverains la Délégation accepte d'établir une canalisation dans la rue Abou Khaf, moyennant une contribution de ces propriétaires à la moitié de la dépense qui s'élève à une somme totale de L.E. 55.

La Délégation propose à la Commission Municipale d'accorder un crédit supplémentaire de L.E. 120 pour frais de déplacement du Service des Recettes.

La séance est levée à 7 h. et 1/4.

CINEMATOGAPHE URBANORA.

Le système d'intercaler, dans les programmes, des attractions, système innové par l'Urbanora, a remporté auprès du public le plus grand succès. Par ce moyen, on est arrivé à supprimer les nombreux entr'actes obligatoires dans les autres cinématographes et les familles qui ne peuvent voir ou entendre des artistes qu'elles seraient heureuses d'applaudir, faute d'établissements à elles réservées ont maintenant l'Urbanora qui s'ingénie à les contenter. Naturellement ces intermèdes ont fait des jaloux et ceux qui critiquent le plus le cinéma moderne sont les mêmes qui cherchent à imiter en tout et surtout en cette occasion. Malheureusement pour eux, la chose leur est impossible et ils en sont réduits à imiter le retard du "Renard et le Renard" du bon La Fontaine.

THE PEER'S "BULL."

"The noble lord shakes his head—and I'm very glad to hear it," said Lord Balfour of Burleigh in the House of Lords on Monday unconsciously perpetrating a Scotch bull. This reminds us of an amusing incident in the House of Commons, when the Speaker remarked: "The hon. member shakes his head, but I can assure him there is nothing in it."

BRUTALITY IN CONGO.

LEMAIR'S REVELATIONS.

Major Lemaire is continuing the publication of his recollections of the Congo Independent State. The major served eighteen years in the Congo in command of native troops. On his return to Belgium he was informed that he would be prosecuted for cruelty toward the men under him, and he retaliated by beginning the publication of a sensational exposure of revolting conditions prevailing in the native army.

Aside from painting a black picture of the conditions in the Congo the memoirs of the major reveal that the scientific expedition led by him into the Bairelghaza region, on the northern frontier, in 1904, was an expedition for conquest in disguise. The major says that King Leopold gave him personal instructions to vanquish the Anglo-Egyptian forces coming down from the Sudan at any cost. "I cannot be held accountable for these acts," the major writes, "I am only responsible for the complete execution of these instructions."

Major Lemaire admits that on several occasions in the course of this expedition which lasted for three years and two months, he caused native soldiers and even their wives to be flogged. He penetrated to regions never before reached by a white man and inhabited by wild tribes and cannibals, and he says that there was no way other than flogging to preserve the discipline necessary to the safety and success of an expedition among brigands accustomed to kill, raid and capture and to ill-treat women. In every instance of flogging, however, he faithfully reported the facts, and never received a word of censure. On the contrary, he met nothing except praise for his conduct of this expedition, and he was decorated by King Leopold. No charges were preferred against the major until the administration decided that he had been too insistent in calling attention to the frightful and unchecked abuses in the Congo.

ITALIAN OFFICERS' SUPPORT MAJOR.

The statements made by Major Lemaire are supported by documentary evidence and the testimony of Italian officers who were recalled by their government from the Congo when information was received regarding what was going on there.

A perusal of M. Lemaire's recital carries the conviction that he is a high minded man of superior attainments, a sincere believer in the future of the Congo and devoted to the cause of the blacks. During his eighteen years of service he crossed Africa twice without firing a cartridge at a native. On one occasion he entered by way of Zambesi and came out two years later at the estuary of the Congo. M. Reclus, the geographer, said that this achievement and its results ranked Lemaire with Abbadie, Duveyrier and Livingstone.

When as a young man Major Lemaire began his work in the Congo "amid the rattle of musketry, the banging of cannon and the burning of villages," he says he was instructed that this course was the only one to bring the natives to their senses. Four years' service, however, opened his eyes to the true reasons why Africa was being deluged in innocent blood. Since then he had defended the blacks, pointing out their good qualities, and upheld the work of the missionaries. He realized the danger of a continuance of irresponsible control in the Congo and became a champion of annexation as the sole remedy.

BRUTALITIES OF SOLDIERS.

Continuing the major relates his repeated and vain attempts to have the soldiery under him punished for their ill treatment of natives. "I have seen them," he writes, "kick the poor rubber and ivory bearers until they fell from exhaustion, and then torture the unfortunates, amid howls of laughter. I repeatedly reported cases of robbery, murder and outrage, but these reports were unheeded."

The major says he once received a letter from the Governor General of the Congo advising him that his services were greatly appreciated, but saying his reports were full of criticism and could not be transmitted to Brussels, where only the rosy side of things was desired.

Later the major tried to see King Leopold, but he was always prevented by intermediaries. "Finding reports useless," the major goes on, "I became pitiless toward the soldier brigands in my determination to enforce respect for the natives, and I challenge the administration to produce one single native complaint against me." Letters received by Major Lemaire from Italian officers show profound admiration for him. Captain Otterio writes: "If your system were followed the Congo administration to-day would be a worthy humanizing mission."

Some of the depositions made by women who were being conducted to the various posts as workers are most pitiful. They swore they had been stolen by the soldiery during raids, maltreated at the hands of the men and then either sold to chiefs or made to work like slaves. Some had seen their parents and children killed before their eyes and others had been subjected to unmentionable indignities.

EFFORTS TO QUASH PROCEEDINGS.

M. Beernaert, head of the Belgian mission to the peace conference investigated the documents submitted by Major Lemaire and undertook to force justice in the matter. The major was at that time the object of a concerted attack by the newspapers subsidized by the Congo Press Bureau, which he had unmasked. These papers insinuated that Lemaire had been guilty of murder, the violation of native women and of using the heads of children for target practice. When M. Beernaert demanded proof of these charges the Secretary of State for the Congo offered to withdraw the accusations, quash the prosecution and retain Major Lemaire in the service—anything, in fact, to hush the matter up—but M. Beernaert informed him: "It is too late: we will prosecute now."

Major Lemaire's narrative of the hardships and trials endured during the Bairel-Ghaza expedition rival the experiences of Dr. Livingstone. One occasion, accompanied only by an interpreter, he advanced fifty miles beyond his column to treat with a native sultan. He not only faced death, but ran the risk of being eaten, as the natives were cannibals. On another occasion he parleyed for an hour and a half, standing knee deep in water while, and surrounded by savages armed with lances, knives and bludgeons.

Throughout his entire service Major Lemaire never carried a revolver when out to punish the troops. To this end he would sometimes use his fists or the butts of the soldiers' own guns.

Recently Major Lemaire made public an extract from a letter received from an English governor whom he met at Bairel-Ghaza under delicate circumstances. This letter, which is dated Sudan, February 25, 1907, says in part: "Dear Commander:

"I hasten to express my surprise and disgust at the abominable fashion in which you have been treated."

THE GREEN SUN.

The appearance of a green light at sunset was noticed and commented upon by the ancient Egyptians and more particularly so because in the clear air of Egypt the tints of sunset are peculiarly distinct.

As the sun there descends nearer and nearer to the horizon and is immensely enlarged and flaming, it suddenly becomes for an instant a brilliantly green color, and immediately a series of green rays suffuses the sky in many directions, well nigh to the zenith. The same phenomenon appears at sunrise, but to a smaller extent. Sometimes, just as the last part of the sun's disk vanishes, its color changes from green to blue, and so also after it has disappeared the sky near the horizon often is green, while toward the zenith it is blue.

This was alluded to in Egyptian writings. Day was the emblem of life and night that of death, and the nocturnal sun, being identified with Osiris, thus rendered Osiris king of the dead. The setting sun was green; therefore Osiris, as the nocturnal deity of the dead, was painted green. The splendid coffins of the high priests of Amon frequently depict the green sun, and the funeral deities are all colored green.

There are innumerable instances in the Egyptian relics of representations relative to death being colored green. The practice undoubtedly arose from the green tints of sunrise and sunset. The green sun disk is referred to 5,000 years ago in Egypt. This is the earliest known human record of an astronomical phenomenon. "Washington Star."

LORD KITCHENER'S CHARACTER.

An admirable character sketch of Lord Kitchener appears in the new volume of "The Times' History of the War in South Africa." by Mr. Evelyn Childers.

Besides an iron constitution, Kitchener had the rare gift of equanimity. Under a burden which would have crushed smaller men he preserved a serene and confident spirit, and he transmitted this confidence to the Army, the Government, and the nation. All recognised in him a great and commanding personality, not indeed above criticism, but compelling trust.

Kitchener was inclined to think too much of propelling, and too little of educating his army, to look rather to the quantity than to the quality of the work done, satisfied if the machine was humming at high pressure and grinding out its quota of captured men and material, but not sufficiently observant of the deep-rooted defects which made the end so long in coming. Hence there was a great waste of force. There prevailed among Kitchener's subordinates a lack of initiative and a lack of aptitude for guerilla war. But it is not to be inferred that Kitchener did nothing to elicit initiative. Many men had freedom offered them who persistently declined to use it. Some few accepted, but as a general rule it is fair to say that Kitchener's natural instinct for firm and continuous control was met half way by officers whose trust in themselves was weaker than their trust in him.

THE FIDGETY GIRL.

I spent the afternoon with a fidgety girl, writes Winifred Black in the "New York American." I went home with a sick headache and preferred to go without my dinner, all on account of the fidgety girl.

I'd rather sit in the room with a screaming parrot or a chattering monkey than to be the unfortunate vis-a-vis victim of a fidgety girl. This unfortunate woman is not ill or nervous or bashful enough to be self-conscious; she's just fidgety because she thinks about herself all the time.

First it was too hot in the room, then there was a draught, then her chair was too hard; next her feet annoyed her, they were too far from the ground. After that her hairpins pulled, and she didn't like the set of her pompadour when she had fussed her hair into shape again; then she began to fidget about the set of her blouse. She pulled it down, she pulled it out, she patted the front of her dress, and pulled in her belt.

Now, if that girl were nervous or ill there would be some excuse for it; but she isn't; she is simply self-centred and ill-bred. Her mother never taught her that the greatest charm a woman can possess is repose of manner, and nobody ever educated her up to the fact it's a good deal more fun to be interested in other people than to be interested in yourself. The fidgety girl is never interested in anything but herself, her own comfort, her own emotions her own clothes, her own appearance—and her own fidgetiness.

Kind fortune, save me from a fidgety girl.

CINDERELLA.

It was in ancient Egypt that the story of Cinderella originated. Moderns, however, owe the familiar nursery story directly to the Frenchman, Charles Perrault, whose "Cendrillon" appeared at the end of the seventeenth century. Perrault took his Cinderella from earlier versions, which came no doubt from the story of Rhodopis' bath. That Egyptian beauty had prepared to bathe when an eagle swooped on one of her slippers, carried it to Memphis and dropped it on the lap of King Psammetichus as he sat administering justice. He admired it, had Egypt searched for its owner, married her and lived happy ever after.

GENERAL BANKERS,
BASILDON HOUSE, BANK, LONDON, E.C.

Circulaire H. De Vries et Boutigny

NOTES ET CRITIQUES

Le Caire, Vendredi 23 Août
Le taux de l'escompte libré à Londres est resté invarié à 4 7/8 pour cent.
Au Stock Exchange, le Consolidé anglais a haussé hier de 1/4 à 82. L'Unifiée a gardé son cours de la veille à 100 1/2. La National Bank est restée ferme à 20 et la Delta à 12 1/4. L'Agricole a gagné 1/8 à 8 1/2, tandis que la Delta Light a perdu 1/8 à 9 1/2.
A Paris, le Crédit Foncier Egyptien a gagné 2 francs à 683. La Banque d'Athènes a été soutenue à 112. Les Lots tures ont bénéficié de 1 franc à 165.

Ici, la séance d'aujourd'hui a apporté peu de changements dans la situation de notre marché, qui est resté un peu flasque. A son actif, il faut noter cependant une amélioration dans le volume des transactions et une demande plus forte sur les valeurs de second ordre. On délaie un peu les grosses valeurs avec la pensée que pour le moment il n'y a pas à attendre de fortes plus-values.

Au demeurant, les cours sont restés soutenus et d'assez nombreux titres clôturent en légère avance avec des velléités de faire mieux très prochainement.

Dans le groupe des Banques, la National Bank hausse à 20-20 1/16. L'Agricole est relâchée à 8. La Cassa di Sconto est ramenée à 36-37. La Banque d'Athènes revient à 113 et la Banque d'Orient à 115-116. Le fondateur Société Générale Egyptienne accentue son relèvement à 39-40.

La Delta Light recule à 9 1/2 à cause de sa baisse à Londres. La Delta Saneh se relève à 12 1/2. Le Crédit Foncier Egyptien retombe à 678 et l'obligation ancienne semble en bonne disposition à 299-300. L'Allotment toujours active reste à 2 7/16 et sa part à P.T. 66. La Société d'Entreprises Immobilières et Travaux est très ferme à 2 1/4 et sa part très mouvementée remonte à P.T. 45. Les Héliopolis actions sont mieux tenues à 246-247, tandis que leur part s'affaïsse à 12.

Dans le compartiment des Hôtels, les Egyptian Hotels (Baehier) sont recherchés à 6 1/8 et les Ritz se ressaisissent à 0 11/16-3/4. Parmi les petites valeurs, la Delta Land est très en faveur à 1 13/16-7/8. Les Markets mollissent à 28, et la fondatrice Khedivial Mail se tasse à 21/9.

Le marché des valeurs étant fermé les sa médies pendant la saison d'été, le prochain numéro de notre Circulaire ne paraîtra que le Lundi 26 Août courant.

Le "Bankers Magazine" consacre aux variations du Consolidé une étude intéressante contenant de précieux éléments d'appréciation. Il explique tout d'abord comment le Consolidé est parvenu naguère à une hauteur que l'on pourrait considérer aujourd'hui comme anormale. Il commence par faire remarquer qu'il y a toujours eu entre les mouvements du Consolidé et les conditions du marché des capitaux des rapports très étroits. Lorsqu'il y avait abondance monétaire et peu de papier offert, le Consolidé était l'objet de demandes qui en faisaient naturellement monter les cours.

En dépit d'une certaine tension monétaire en 1897 et 1898, les cours, comme grâce à des droits acquis, se maintiennent bien, surtout pendant la première de ces deux années. Mais déjà en 1898 le Consolidé était plus à son apogée.

Malgré la connexion intime existant entre les mouvements du Consolidé et les conditions du marché monétaire, les changements survenus dans celles-ci ne suffisent pas à expliquer la marche de notre rente. Il y a d'autres facteurs qui ont joué un rôle considérable. En effet, ce n'est pas seulement le taux peu élevé de l'escompte qui a déterminé la hausse du Consolidé. Celle-ci est due aussi et en grande partie aux achats obligatoires de la Caisse d'épargne postale, qui de 1891 à 1898 a doublé son stock de Consolidés. Cet exemple a été suivi par les Caisse d'épargne ordinaires et par les sociétés de secours mutuels.

Ces achats, joints à l'action du fonds d'amortissement, réduisaient de plus en plus la quantité de Consolidés flottants. Mais bientôt après commença un déclin général qui a été en s'accroissant d'année en année et dont il faut rechercher les causes, en dehors de la politique, dans le renchérissement de l'argent, la diminution des demandes et l'accroissement de la quantité des valeurs susceptibles d'être acquises par les "trustees."

Depuis huit ans le taux moyen de l'escompte libré est de £ 3 1/4, alors que pour la période des huit années précédentes il a été de 1 1/4 p.c. On comprend que le revenu élevé que les capitaux pouvaient obtenir en s'employant sur le marché monétaire a dû les détourner des valeurs qui ne leur donnaient qu'un intérêt beaucoup plus faible.

A BROKEN-DOWN SYSTEM.

This is a condition (or disease) to which doctors give many names, but which few of them really understand. It is simply weakness—a break-down, not only of the vital forces that sustain the system, but also of the mental and moral forces. No matter what may be its causes (for they are all-natural), it is a condition which must be treated. The more treatment being dispensed, the more pronounced the symptoms become. It is a condition which is not only a source of suffering, but also a source of danger. Now, what is absolutely essential in all such cases is a thorough and complete re-education.
